SUPPORTING BEST INTERESTS DECISION MAKING: EMPIRICAL FINDINGS FROM THE JUDGING VALUES PROJECT

Speaker: Rebecca Stickler Research Fellow at the Institute for Criminal Policy Research

Rebecca Stickler was a specialist Court of Protection and Public Law Barrister. She left the Bar in December 2018 and went to continue her work with mental capacity law through the project, Judging Values and Participation in Mental Capacity Law.

The project is a three-year, interdisciplinary research collaboration exploring how judges and their values influence the principles and procedures in mental capacity law, particularly when deciding how P participates in legal proceedings.

Rebecca is returning to provide a follow up on the project, after her introductory seminar in January 2020. Rebecca will be sharing some exciting insights from the three-year project.
