Talk on Lifetime gifting and succession planning in the Court of Protection

Speaker: Fay Collinson
Barrister, Kings Chambers
Year of Call: 2011

Fay is a specialist court of protection and chancery barrister. She has a broad practice that encompasses contentious probate, trusts, property disputes and all sides of Court of Protection work.

Fay's thriving court of protection practice focuses on property and affairs with a particular emphasis on statutory wills, lifetime gifting applications and contested applications concerning deputies and attorneys. Her property and affairs work is informed by her chancery practice.

Whilst a large part of Fay's practice concerns property and affairs she is adept at handling health and welfare matters, including, medical treatment, welfare disputes and deprivation of liberty proceedings. She is often instructed by the official solicitor, local authorities, NHS Trusts and clinical commissioning groups.
